

Annual Report of the Board of Trustees for 1999

Claims seeking reimbursement for losses resulting from dishonest conduct in the practice of law in New York State dropped by 46 percent in 1999.

Losses alleged by claimants last year dropped by 35 percent.

The New York Lawyers' Fund last year restored $3.4 million to 161 eligible law clients and escrow beneficiaries.

Only one eligible victim in 1999—a pension fund—received less than full reimbursement for its loss. The remaining 160 victims of lawyer dishonesty received 100 percent reimbursement of their losses.

Sixty-nine of those eligible claimants were represented by lawyers, free of charge to them and to the Lawyers' Fund.

At year's end, the fund's Board of Trustees increased the fund's coverage from $200,000 to $300,000 per eligible loss, effective January 1, 2000 and paramount in the nation.

Reimbursement awards in 1999 reimburse losses caused by 68 former members of the New York bar. There are 181,000 lawyers admitted to practice in the Empire State.

The median client and escrow loss reimbursed last year was $5,000.

All claims processed to final disposition in 1999 involved alleged losses of $14 million.

At year's end, there were 235 pending claims. They allege dishonest conduct by 110 lawyers and law firms, and losses of $16 million.

The fund had $6.3 million in its trust account in the state treasury at the close of 1999.

All awards since 1982 total $75.4 million. They have been paid to 4876 eligible claimants of 606 former lawyers.

Reported Losses in 1999

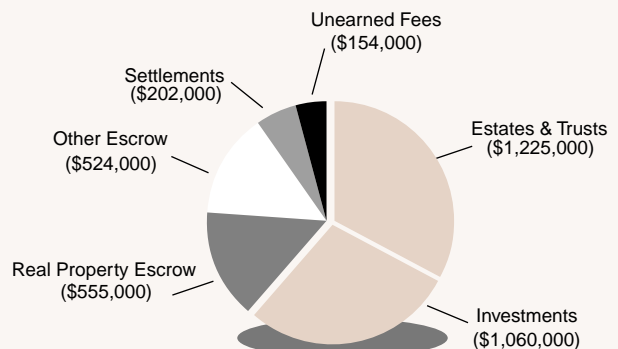

There were 442 reimbursement claims filed in 1999. The bulk of reported losses (71%) involve alleged embezzlements in investment transactions, thefts from estates and trusts, and thefts of settlement proceeds.

Losses in 1999 Awards

The Trustees approved 161 reimbursement awards in 1999. Awards totaled $3.4 million, and reimbursed actual client losses of $3.7 million.

Thefts from estates and trusts and frauds in investment transactions accounted for the bulk of client losses (61%).

The New York Lawyers' Fund was created by the State Legislature in 1981. The law provides for the reimbursement of losses caused by a lawyer's "dishonest conduct", which is defined as the "misappropriation or wilful misapplication" of client property in the practice of law.

Examples of eligible losses include the theft of estate assets, real property escrows, litigation settlements, debt-collection proceeds, and embezzled investments. The fund requires the lawyer's removal from practice, and evidence that the lawyer is unable to make restitution. The fund's Trustees budget $8 million annually for awards to eligible victims.

The fund has no jurisdiction in fee disputes, and will only reimburse legal fees where there's evidence of deceit or larceny by false promise. In investment frauds, the client must show that "but for" dishonest conduct in an attorney-client relationship, the loss would not have occurred.

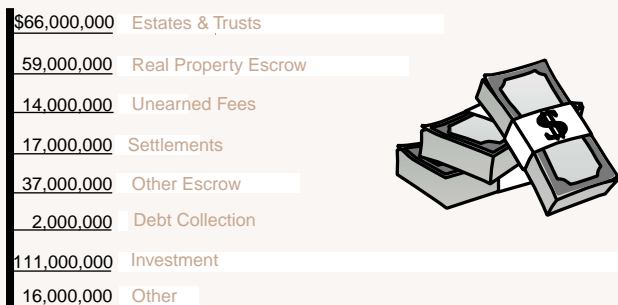

The fund does not reimburse losses incurred by government agencies, financial institutions, or business organizations having 20 or more employees.

Claim investigations are coordinated with the efforts of Attorney Grievance Committees and District Attorneys to avoid duplication of effort and expense.

Claim filings in 1999 totaled 442, down from 812 filed claims in 1998. Claims in 1999 alleged losses of $16 million. The largest number (199) sought reimbursement of legal fees. The largest reported losses ($4.3 million) involved the administration of estates and trusts, followed by $4 million in alleged losses involving investment transactions with lawyers.

Reported Losses Since 1982

All reimbursement claims since 1982 total 9795. The claims allege losses of $322 million.

The Trustees meet quarterly to evaluate the merits of claims. Claim reports are readied for the Trustees promptly following a lawyer's disbarment. Awards are paid by the NYS Comptroller from the fund's trust account in the New York State Treasury.

The Trustees approved 161 awards in 1999, with documented losses of $3.7 million. Awards totaled $3.4 million, and ranged between $9 and $200,000. Median loss and award: $5,000.

Only three claimants have challenged Trustees' determinations, in Article 78 proceedings, which denied them awards. They involved investment transactions with lawyers. Two proceedings were judicially dismissed, and the third challenge is pending.

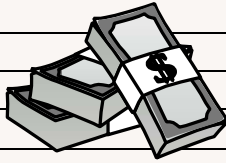

Since 1982, final determinations have been reached in 9,795 claims. Nearly half of all claims (4,876) were approved; and half (4,744) were rejected. Losses alleged in rejected claims now exceed $183 million.

All awards since 1982 involve actual client and escrow losses of $109 million. Most losses involve thefts from estates and trusts ($40 million), followed by thefts in real property transactions, typically residential purchases and sales ($27 million).

Awards since 1982 involve dishonest conduct by 606 former members of the bar. The national experience (and there are now client protection funds in every state) is that most losses involve sole practitioners. Very few losses in New York State involve female lawyers.

A large percentage of losses that come to the fund involve a lawyer's medical and professional problems, alcohol, gambling and drug abuse.

The NYS Department of Law represents the fund in its subrogation efforts, and provides an Assistant Attorney General at an annual cost to the fund of $95,500.

Orders of restitution, including money judgments imposed in disbarment proceedings, safeguard the fund's creditor rights. One recent order permitted the fund's seizure of a $1 million lottery jackpot to satisfy a $100,000 restitution claim. The fund's recovery included interest and legal fees.

The theft of a personal injury settlement, by forgery of the client's endorsement, has been nearly eliminated in New York, thanks to an Insurance Department procedure, proposed by the fund, that requires notice to a client when an insurer mails the settlement check to the client's attorney. The ABA has crafted this procedure into a Model Rule for all states.

The Lawyers' Fund acts as a statewide clearing house for reports of bounced checks on attorney trust and escrow accounts. In six years, the fund has processed 3500 bank reports involving bounced checks on trust accounts totaling $57 million. The reports have identified upwards of 40 lawyers who had misused escrow funds. Most have clients who have claims pending with the fund.

Court rules designate the Lawyers' Fund as a depository for funds that belong to missing law clients and escrow beneficiaries. 22 NYCRR 1200.46(f-1). The rules and sample pleading forms are posted in the fund's Internet site.
